Pick a pair for the heart fund

For the second year in a row the Student Activities Board is sponsoring the "Harry Leggs" contest to collect money for the heart fund.

Last year the contest featured men's legs. This year the limbs of women will be scrutinized by the student body. VOTING is taking place this week in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union. The best pair of legs or the ones that collect the most pennies in jars set up in the Union will be declared the winner.

That fortunate person will be announced at the Valentine Dance in the Union Ballroom which is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Mother Fox will be the band playing at this year's dance.

Admission will be 43 cents for couples, 44 cents stag.

Coleman Hall Auditorium Sunday

Fite will officiate college bowl finals

The finals of the third annual College Bowl with Gilbert C. Fite officiating will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 12, in the Coleman Hall Auditorium.

Sixteen teams entered the event, which is modeled after television's College Bowl. Questions were submitted from department heads about the University.

First prize is $100 and a trophy donated by Taylor Hall. Second prize is $50 and a trophy. Any team sponsored by a registered campus organization. Entry fee is $10.

Ms. Sue Sparks of Financial Accounting judged the Feb. 6 event and Mrs. Sue Stoner of Psychology will judge on Feb. 12. President Gilbert C. Fite will present the trophies.

THE SESSIONS are conducted with 30 questions per team and the team with the most points winning. A correct answer scores ten points. Incorrect answers do not count off, but the team is not permitted a second try at the same question.

Teams indicate answers by means of buzzers, bells and blue and red lights.

THE ROSTER for the opening games read:

Carman 1 vs. Pi Kappa Delta, Lincoln vs. Sigma Chi 2, Carman 2 vs. WELH, Pem vs. Accounting Club, Douglas vs. Chessman, Lawson vs. Stevenson, Carman S. vs. Beta Sigma Psi and Weller vs. Independent.

Thomas, Andrews and McKinney Hall did not enter.

The previous winners were Ford Hall, 1971, and Stevenson Towers, 1970.

CHAIRMAN of the committee is Jim Pienkowski, Taylor North and Marcie Utech of Taylor South.

SAB will present

"The Cage," a powerful drama about prison life, written, acted and produced by former prison inmates, will play at Eastern Feb. 18, 8:30 p.m., McAfee. Tickets will cost 50 cents at the door.

Grafton complies with student voting order

Harry Grafton, whose Coles County clerk's office was the site of a student protest several months ago concerning the right to register to vote, Monday he will register students on the same basis as people.

Grafton told a news conference in Charleston that he was acting in compliance with a court order which required students must be registered if they fulfill the same requirements as residents.

THE ORDER, handed down by Judge Henry Wise of U.S.

District Court, was issued after the American Civil Liberties Union filed suit on behalf of several University of Illinois students challenging voting requirements in Sangamon County.

Under the ruling, persons must be allowed to register to vote if they are at least 18 years old, have lived in the state for six months and in the county for 30 days.

Grafton said he acted after he was told of the decision, which he said also applied to the Coles County situation.

Student tenant's union to be organized

The Student Senate Housing Committee will organize a tenant's union for students as soon as possible, according to chairmen Gail West and Bruce Krueger.

The senate committee also plans to provide a counseling service on housing for students. The service will deal with approved and unapproved housing and problems between tenants and landlords such as contract and rent disputes and security deposits.

WHILE the idea of a counseling service is approved by the Housing Office, college rep Gail West emphasized that the administration is not connected with the service.

She said that should a tenant come to the service with a housing problem, he would be "turned in" for living off-campus.

Any student needing help should contact the service by going to the senate office, telephoning or contacting his senate representative.

SENATOR West said that the tenant's union is "not necessarily the student government's thing. We are just trying to get it organized."

She went on to say that the housing committee, in conjunction with these plans, is compiling a list of the apartment buildings in Charleston and conditions therein.

Platforms due

All persons wishing to submit platforms to the NEWS for the upcoming Student Senate elections must do so by bringing their platforms to the basement of Pemberton Hall no later than 3 p.m. Friday.

Platforms are not to exceed 250 words. Those submitted which are longer will be cut at the editor's discretion. Platforms must be typewritten and double-spaced.

UCM minister

Giegler runs for school board

Carl E. Giegler announced today that he is a candidate for election to the Community Unit No. 2 School Board in the April 8 election. The Rev. Mr. Giegler has been a resident of Mattoon since his appointment as vicar to Trinity Episcopal Church and chaplain at Eastern, Canterbury Association, on June 23, 1968. Before coming to Mattoon he was the curate of St. John's Episcopal Church in New Milford, Conn., for four years. He is married to the former Beverly Severns. They have two daughters, Elizabeth in the third grade at Lincoln School and Jeanette in kindergarten.

IN MATTOON, the Rev. Mr. Giegler has been active in the Ministerial Association, serving as vice-president for the last two years, in the Jaycees, serving as treasurer this past year; in the Area PTA Council, serving as juvenile protection chairman; in Lincoln School PTA, serving as vice-president in '70-'71 and president in '71-'72.

He is a staff member of the United Campus Ministry Center in Charleston on a parttime basis and serves as chairman of the College Work Department of the Episcopal Diocese of Springfield.

The Rev. Mr. Giegler was born in Oak Park, Ill., in February of 1939 and raised in suburban Palos Heights. He graduated from Carl Sandburg High School (District No. 230) in 1957 and received his BA degree from Trinity College, Hartford, in 1961 with majors in English and philosophy.

HE HOLDS the M.Div (STB) degree from New York's General Theological Seminary, which he earned in 1964, and was ordained in the Episcopal Ministry in that same year.

He has served the Connecticut Jaycees as state chaplain and the New Milford Jaycees as president and is presently a member of the Board of Directors of the Institute for Sex Education in Chicago.

He has attended the College of Preachers in Washington, D.C., taken graduate courses at Eastern and been a substitute teacher in Unit No. 2 schools.

Senate conducts teacher evaluation next week

Beginning next week, the Student Senate will again be administering the Teacher Evaluation Program. All faculty members have been invited to take part by allowing students to evaluate their teaching abilities. The preparation for this year's program began early fall quarter. Unlike last year, when Student Senator Joyce Brown (now Mrs. Ray Pranske) had total responsibility over the program this year a committee of three students and three faculty members has been handling the project.

FACULTY members, Robert Barford, Ed Whalin and David Mauer have worked for over four months with students Karen Shoemaker, Sue Wells and Allen Grosboll in an attempt to get the evaluation completed winter quarter.

Every instructor will be sent a packet of question and answer sheets for each section he teaches. Also included in this packet will be an instruction sheet outlining the evaluation procedure.

Notice

The Student Publications Board will sponsor an open forum on all campus publications February 15, 2 p.m. in the Booth Library Lecture Room.

The editors of the Eastern NEWS, WARBLER and VEHICLE will be present to answer questions. Students, faculty and civil service personnel are urged to attend.

Krueger shuns involvement

The NEWS has had some difficulty lately in the housing probe due largely to the many students who "do not want to become involved." They have refused to allow the NEWS investigation team into their houses and even have gone as far as to not answer the door even though they were seen at the windows.

We expected this type of reaction from some of the students, but we found it interesting when one person refused to allow the team to investigate his house. That person was Duane Krueger, co-chairman of the student senate housing committee.

KRUEGER said that he did not want his house investigated by the NEWS because he did not think it would do any good and because he did not want to become involved.

We found his statements to be particularly appalling in light of the fact that he is supposed to be a representative of the student body as a student senator, and he is supposed to be trying to help improve housing conditions as co-chairman of the housing committee.

When students write to the NEWS and ask why little is being done to improve the conditions of approved off-campus housing, we could not answer their question. Now we feel that part of the answer is that the housing committee leadership is weak.

WE HAVE no argument with Gail West, the other co-chairman of the housing committee. In fact, we have found that she is doing an excellent job, but any chain is only as strong as its weakest link.

The NEWS feels that this person's actions may be why students are still unsatisfied with the conditions of approved housing.

We also feel that the student body of this campus cannot afford to have a person in the position that Krueger is in at this time, especially when students are attempting to form a tenant's union.

IF THE present administration does not remove this person, who is afraid to commit himself totally to his position, and may even be trying to hide the condition of his house from the press which has dedicated its time and personnel to help clean a situation of great concern to students, then we can only hope that the newly elected student administration will take greater care in selecting a person to fill Krueger's position.

Since Mike Goetz showed great concern for this area in his campaign perhaps we can assume that better days are ahead for students living in approved off-campus housing.

Non-contact sport?

Getting a full-ride scholarship in basketball is getting to be a rather dangerous thing. What used to be known in the "old" days as a non-contact sport is in what seems to be a continuing state of evolution. The only problem is, the direction basketball is taking is soon going to put it in the same category as street fighting and hand to hand combat. The chant, "Go-Fight-Win!!!" is being taken quite literally by what seems to be a greater number of teams this year than ever before.

In high schools and colleges across the nation a brawl during a basketball game is becoming part of the evening's entertainment. At Eastern wrestling demonstrations have been staged at half time for the enjoyment of the spectators. Now I'm beginning to think these demonstrations are merely a warm-up for what's coming up in the second half. Actually, with the way some of the fights have been, the crowd is lucky if they even see a second half.

IN A RECENT Big Ten basketball game between Ohio State and Minnesota, the Minnesota players and fans attacked some of the Ohio State players so viciously it probably could have been considered an X-rated basketball game. One of the players attacked didn't even remember being carried from the floor as the "sympathetic" Minnesota crowd booed as he was taken from the gym. One thing you can say for the crowd, that's Loyalty, which is times must be pretty close to Insanity.

The Minnesota coach says he doesn't believe in "rebuilding years" for what has been a losing basketball team. So in his first year as Minnesota's coach, he has instilled in his players and perhaps the fans his unique philosophy on sports, "Defeat is Worse Than Death-You Have to Live with Defeat." That's a pretty tough slogan to live by, or die by, whatever the case may be.

Sometimes I wonder if people like this Minnesota coach don't miss their calling. I think he'd be more at home in a place like Ho Chi Minh or Da Nang, South Viet Nam. Instead of building a basketball team he seems to be building a guerilla combat unit. And instead of playing a game for its merits in physical fitness, intercollegiate unity, sportsmanship and just plain coping with people, the so-called "coach" seems to think winning is necessary at any cost.

THAT'S RIGHT, winning a game means more than teaching the players to respect each other for what they are, to respect the game for what it stands for or even the schools and the athletes' conference for what they stand for. Yes, in this coach's eyes the players had plenty of reason to kick the hell out of Ohio's players. After all, Minnesota was losing.

With that, all I can say is I hope the basketball evolution doesn't evolve too much more. Otherwise, I can see the day when there will probably be a cage separating the fans from the players, and the outcome of the game will be voiced by the crowd with a thumbs-up or thumbs-down motion.

Imagine reading the sports page, Eastern 3- Opposition 1, and that's the number of players able to walk off the court at the end of the game, sort of an evolution into the past.

Letter

'Student comments on Maddox

Dear Editor and Students:

I've just returned from the should-have-been uneventful lecture (or whatever it was) by Lester Maddox. I say should have been uneventful because of one thing.

Anyone going to hear him should have been going there to listen to him—to see if what the news media had said about the man was really true.

(THIS should have been confirmed in your minds by the first 15 minutes of his "speech.")

But it seems that some went with the idea of 1) putting him on the spot, 2) making him look bad, or 3) making him admit he is a bigot.

As far as 2 goes, I don't think you could have made him look any worse. About 1 and 3—well, could you expect a man (leastwise Lester Maddox) to come right out and say he's a bigot.

DID YOU expect him to say, "Yes, I threw some niggers out of my restaurant; yes, I'm a facist; yes, I'm a racist bigot."? You couldn't have even thought that he'd say that.

He's not going to change. And by our actions (the clown, the talking, the laughing, and the hooting) we only showed that we were as stupid as he is.

IF ANY of us had gone before a group of Lester Maddoxes to speak we would all want the courtesy of being heard. We would not want to be harassed because of what we think or feel. We should have given him this same courtesy.

I'm not sticking up for Lester Maddox; I'm sticking up for the right of free speech. I can yell for people to hear me and in the same breath tell someone else to shut up. Freedom of speech and thought starts at home. How about starting at the next lecture?

Mary Byrne

Vogel suggests lottery

Senior coed will give piano recital

To the Editor:
I would like to propose a campus lottery to rename all buildings on campus. While this sounds a little far-fetched at first, it would really solve many problems.
First, out of the jar "A" we'd pull a present building name and out of jar "B" we'd pull a number, which would become the building's new name. The process would be simple, and when new buildings are built each would simply receive the next sequential number.
The University would also save money this way. Instead of buying all those letters for exterior names one or two digital figures are all that would be needed.

I also submit that no group or individual could be offended or feel left out with these numbers. No one could be offended by a "1" or "8" or "9" or "36."
New freshmen wouldn't be any more confused either. The numbers would be easier to remember than the present names and would require no extra time in learning.
IMAGINE what a sight it would be to see Lantz Gym adorned with banners like: Building Number 7 backs the Panthers.

Number designations would also seem more at home on schedule cards than arbitrary contractions of the existing.
While we are at it why not give all the students, administrators and faculty numbers and do away with names altogether.

Respectfully,
358-44-3587
(Don Vogel)

Cathy Bertolino, senior piano major at Eastern will present a recital of piano music Feb. 10 at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center.
Selections being performed will include a toccata by J.S. Bach, two numbers from "Songs Without Words" by Felix Mendelssohn, and three contemporary preludes composed in 1962 by Benjamin Less.

MISS Bertolino is a student of Karen Sanders.

Miss Janet Drennan will present her senior recital on the same program. Miss Drennan is a clarinet major from Neoga, Ill. She is a student of Earl Boyd.

"Solo de Concours" by Henri Rabaud, "Sonatina for Clarinet and Piano" by Malcom Arnold, and the first movement of the "Second Concerto, Opus 94" by C.M. von Weber will be performed. Miss Drennan will be accompanied by Miss Ann Neely.

THE PUBLIC is invited to attend.

SAB shows 'The Great Imposter'

Tony Curtis stars in this Friday's SAB presentation of "The Great Imposter," a comedy-drama about the career of F.D. Demara, who was one of the world's great impersonators.

Viewers will find this flick a little exaggerated yet essentially true and a lot of fun.

DURING the movie's run, you will see Curtis as an imposter in the Army, Marines, Cardinal's office, a monastery, a prison and finally as a surgeon in the Canadian Navy.

Variety, it's been pointed out, is the spice of life, and Tony Curtis' exploits will amuse and fascinate all in this exciting biography.

See it Friday at the Lab School Auditorium either at 6:30 p.m. or 9 p.m. Admission is 25 cents.

Another play, another 'strike'

by Judy Runion

After lights dim on the final act and the applause fades, the audience assumes another play has come and gone. Actually, it has not completely ended.

Members of the cast and crews scatter like a broken chain of pop beads each to do their part in striking the set or in more common language, tearing down and storing parts of the set.

THE SIGHT was a surprisingly organized one Tuesday evening as participants took instructions from Andrea Metzler, set designer, as to where various items should be stored.

Not only is the set struck, but costumes, props, make-up, and lights are stored and removed too.

EACH ARTICLE must be stored in its place, and room is becoming a problem.

However, the newly acquired theatre house provides for classrooms and doubles as a storage area. Presently, a theatre arts major lives there and looks after it. Theatre majors must take a practicum course in which they learn to strike a set. They participate in the actual job.

COSTUMES MUST be stored according to their style and the period of time they originated from. Major clothing articles are not to be used more than once every three years.

Although it sounds chaotic, the process appears to be quite planned out. Everyone goes to a different section of the stage and starts dismantling everything in sight.

Focus on a Fish Monster

by Janine Hartman

What can you say about a radioactive fish monster that died of sodium poisoning?

That he had a passion for human blood?

That last Friday night he starred in the lousiest TV movie of the quarter, turning even the hardened dormie science-fiction/horror fans away from channel 4, leaving only the masochists and those with an eye for documenting a facet of student life (and filling newspaper space)?

All this can be said about the "star" of "The Horror of Party Beach," a great monster burdened with a script apparently authored by an English 120 class.

A late flowering of the overripe '50's this flick chronicles the happy-go-lucky life of a pack of teeny-bopper, scantily-clad sand-kickers who cannot exist without their three-piece combo (crew cuts and striped shirt types). Life to them is a battle of the bands, 24 hours a day, with only one band. In this battle, the sand crabs win.

The star originates when a gent from the department of sanitation dumps an oil drum of radioactive waste into the ocean. This arrant pollution results in the birth of the celebrated radioactive fish monster who looks like a horned toad, equipped with plastic eyes from a bubble gum package.

However, he is a good actor, with an award-winning lurch. He sounds like a car with a dead battery.

Now that a star is born, returning to the beach one finds pleasure-seeking Tina in an altercation with a muscle-bound clutzo named Hank, who insists that there is more to life than beach parties and wishes to continue his career as a scientist. However, Tina states, "You haven't lived until you've seen Tina swing!"

After swinging, (and sashaying and in general shaking all over), Tina makes a visiting motorcycle mobber livid with passion. He takes off his shirt, even his shades, and she attempts to follow suit when Hank intervenes. And the band plays on. That's the kind of movie it was.

Joe Cool is defeated, sweltering in the sand, while Tina swims off to sea, possibly to join the skipjack tuna fleet.

As the monster debuts with Tina's demise, the audience notes that a large allotment of the film's budget went for ketchup. The dying scream was decrescendo. And the band played on, the monster blending right in.

THE MONSTER will go on to annihilate a slumber party of 20 girls who had been expecting a social call from the Chi Psi's. The frat never shows, but the radioactive fish monster, apparently a GDI, does attend, with two buddies. They killed 20, but one campfire girl reject survives to tell the tale. Despite her loquaciousness, the fish monster manages to get a carload of floozies with a flat (tire) before justice, and the PhD catch up with him.

Hank the hero has shifted his theatre of operations to a stringy but brainy blonde, daughter of a prof. Said prof, assisted by his Black housekeeper, Yula Belle, (a definite pre-liberation cliché character), discovered that the radioactive fish monster was in reality "a giant protozoa, a jellyfish, the living dead. Being all-water, he can be killed with sodium!" Now the world can be made safe for the beach gang. The wonders of science have wrought a salvation!

At this juncture, this reporter was forced to cease in-depth coverage of the radioactive fish monster's career, being dragged away by friends with weak stomachs.

ACCORDING TO reliable sources who remained, the fish monster, after nearly killing the stringy blonde, perished, presumably in a cloud of sodium.

But, for the ultimate horror, tune in next week for "Son of Horror of Party Beach," the result of the unholy mating of the beach party series and the Japanese horror flicks, for the nadir in creeping slime!

Radioactive fish monster, you will be remembered.

Panther profiles

by Mike Cowling

(This is the third in a series of articles covering the individual players and coaches on the Eastern Panthers basketball team.)

Bill Thommen

If you've ever seen the Harlem Globetrotters play basketball, you were probably amazed at the comical cutups' ability to make good at two opposite talents at once, play good basketball and make people laugh.

Of course the Harlem Globetrotters are one team of a kind; and when you look at any other basketball team you can

Looking at Thommen's credentials, 16 points and 9.1 rebounds a game, it's clear to see that the 6-6, 190 pound marketing major from Roanoke (Ill.) is definitely serious about the game of basketball.

From his pre-school days when his father first handed him a basketball, until his last outing Monday night against Southwest Missouri, Thommen has always been a dedicated athlete.

IN HIS senior year at Roanoke-Benson High School (enrollment 260) Thommen averaged 22 points a game while being selected Little All-State, All-State Honorable Mention in a Chicago paper and All-State in another.

Following his outstanding senior year in which his team finished 21-6, Thommen chose to enroll at Eastern instead of Illinois State or Southern Illinois because he was impressed by the coaches and liked the size of the school.

From one small school to another, Thommen carried on his winning basketball style as the Panthers, a team he feels can go all of the way if they put it together, presently holds a respectable 14-6 record.

THOMMEN, who plans a career in advertising if he doesn't go on into basketball said, "I feel basketball truly helps to build a person's character. You get involved with many people in basketball."

If you've ever seen Bill Thommen play basketball, you know that he gets involved. As he put it, "I used to be an outside man able to play inside. Now I'm an inside man able to play outside, if you can figure that out."

Judging from his play, the statement is easily calculated.

see that the tone of the game is more serious and astute.

BILL THOMMEN, junior forward for Eastern's basketball Panthers, justified this statement when he said, "You can't be serious about life all of the time. But when I play basketball it's one time in my life when I get serious."

Panthers back home

Eastern's cagers will initiate a new basketball opponent to Lantz Gymnasium when they meet the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay Wednesday.

Tipoff will be at 8 p.m. In the preliminary, Eastern's junior varsity will tangle with the Martin Oilers, an independent team, at 5:45 p.m.

GREEN Bay's Phoenix, added to the Panther slate this year, will present a solid challenge for Don Eddy's Eastern quintet after sailing into the February segment of their schedule with a 14-3 record. The Phoenix posed a 23-5 record in 1970-71 during their first full season under coach Dave Bus and have a shot at repeating that feat this year.
